

District Finder

The state's current budget crisis is, in large part, a result of our state's inequitable tax code, which relies on those with the least to pay the most.

Our state legislature did their best last session to address the funding gap, but we're once again facing an all-cuts budget that could jeopardize our COLAs and impact state workers at every level.

It's critical that in the 2026 session, we take meaningful steps to fix what remains the second-most unfair tax structure in the United States.

Tell your elected officials about your important work, what you hope your legislators will prioritize this session, and how potential cuts could further impact your work and the people who depend upon it. We demand a Washington for all, not just the rich.
